EXAMINATION TO FILL LOCAL P. M.

Test of "Business Experience" and Other Qualifications To Be Held February 14

Civil service examination will be held February 14 to make up a list of eligibles to fill the vacancy in the Richmond postoffice, which has been declared by the Administration at Washington. The place of examination was not announced in the dispatch from Washington which told of the fixing of the date. It is expected, however, that the examination will be held here or perhaps Lexington. The chief consideration in the examinations as revised by the Civil Service Commission to make places for good republicans is said to be "Business Experience."

Whether there will be more than one applicant for the examination is not known but the Daily Register has heard no other name suggested for local postmaster except that of Robert K. Burnam, Jr. The dispatch from Washington said this of the postal examinations ordered:

Of the 16 third class offices in Kentucky, only seven are now vacant, but the others are expected to be by the time the red tape in connection with the new appointments is unwound.

The second class offices to be filled, at salaries ranging from $2,300 to $3,000, are Campbellsville, Glasgow, Richmond and Winchester. The third class offices whose salaries range from $1,200 to $2,200 a year, are Ashland, Brooksville, Clarkson, Clay City, Edwinstown, Lagrange, Midway, Millersburg, Morehead, Newcastle, Payson, Russell, Salt Lick, Sharpburg, Sparta and Springfield.

EASTERN'S HARDEST GAME HERE TONIGHT

With two scalps tied to their belt and no defeats marked up against them, the Eastern Normal basketball team will meet one of its toughest nits Saturday night when they lock horns with the fast Sue Bennett Memorial basketball team. The Sue Bennett is one of the best teams in the Eastern Kentucky Athletic Association and Eastern will have to strain their stuff to beat these London lads. The Eastern team has been fast developing into a very highly polished organization. Every man of the team is a good floor man and an excellent shot at the basket. Eastern has also developed into a passing team hard to beat in Eastern Kentucky. They throw the ball to the spot and a man is there for the pill when it arrives. The Normal five is one that follows up its shots on every occasion. The Eastern men have the E. K. A. A. championship, but in their bonnet and are not going to let the opportunity slip by them to eliminate a hot contender in the Sue Bennett Memorial if fighting can save off defeat.

Sue Bennett has Overly, a star of Union College, with her this year. He is really a star that is to be considered before making rash decisions about the outcome of the Eastern-Sue Bennett game. Overly played here with Union College in the 1919-20 season and stamped himself as one to be dreaded by Eastern. His great work led to Eastern's defeat then but critics who have watched the Eastern boys say there will have to be all Overly's to stop them on their march to victory.

At the guarding positions Mentor Hembree, of Eastern Normal, has a tough proposition to deal with. Hall, Mainous and Combs are there for the positions with Kunkel close behind them. All are first class performers and any two may receive the call from Coach Hembree. Stephenson will start at center while Byrd and Clark are expected to open at forwards. Game called at 7:30, come out and pull for the home team.

SUGAR ADVANCE NOT ANTICIPATED

Regarding reports from Washington that an advance in sugar was imminent, Kellogg and Co., wholesale grocers of this city, have received the following which will be of interest:

Jacksonville, Fla., Jan. 14, Kellogg & Co., Richmond, Ky.

Telegram received. Investigation among sugar representatives here develops an easy feeling among refiners and indicates no apprehension of any early advance. I do not think any importance can be attached to recent newspaper reports. Surplus of raw sugar carried over from last year offers no reason to fear any early scarcity of sugar or advance. J. H. Otto Hoffman offers a humorous part as James Spivins, Mary's father, a grasping and straight laced small town banker. STABBED IN ARGUMENT OVER POOL TOBACCO

Young Taylor's Fork Farmers In Altercation Over Question of Sale of Pooled Weed

Dan McBride, son of Nathan Broadbush in the throat in a First street pool, Jan. 13 about noon Saturday.

An argument over the tobacco pool is said to have been the cause of the difficulty. Broadbush was taken to a local hospital while McBride was arrested and placed in jail. Broadbush is dangerously wounded it is reported.
